Cash basis: income is what arrived in the bank, expense is what left. Variance is actual minus budget; green is good in both directions. Pool is red because of the September shock treatment, which hey flagged before it was paid.

ANNOTATION

Cash basis: assets are the bank balances, nothing else. No receivables, payables or prepaid liabilities. What owners owe, what owners have paid ahead and what is owed to vendors are the memo reports that follow in the board package. Operating and reserve funds are shown separately because the governing documents and state statutes require it.

About this package

Owners receive the first four sections of the board's monthly package: the cover, the monthly update, the budget comparison and the balance sheet. The board's package continues with the aged owner balance report, the collection report, the prepaid report, the check register, the bank reconciliations and the bank statements.

Owners can see every paid bill in the portal (except bills the board marks confidential) and can ask hey any question about these numbers. Owner balances, collection matters and other owners' accounts are never shown to owners.
